"On this Thanksgiving Day of 1952 we Americans have much to be thankful for: the rights we enjoy as Americans, the bounty that the Maker of us all has showered upon our land, the privilege of sharing with our neighbors and friends that bounty.

How important it is today to share with our friends is shown by your presence here. It is difficult to find a better way to express the spirit of thankfulness than in aid to those in distress. It is this way of giving, which translated into our daily lives has become the true meaning of Thanksgiving Day.

The game today, whoever the winner, is an example of the rights we Americans enjoy—the right to meet and enjoy ourselves in an athletic contest. Let us play all games always in the spirit that moved our forefathers and moves us now."

O. S. ROLFE
Brigadier General, USA
Commanding

"Today is your day and mine, a part of our American heritage. We pause to give thanks to a beneficent Creator for the fact that we are well fed, well clothed and well sheltered.

We are to witness this afternoon a contest between two splendid teams—this also is a part of our American way of life. Here we have a demonstration of individual faith in one's own ability with the group which unity of effort spells final victory.

In a larger sense, we are players on a team that will and must win. We measure the achievements of tomorrow by the yardstick of our confidence and our resolve. We are dedicated to the defense of our country and the making possible an abiding peace. The realizations of tomorrow are governed by our doubts of today.

With a thanksgiving for what we have, we move forward as a team, with a strong and active faith that victory will be ours in the days ahead."
